I want to know more about the water carts? By whom are they used? If owners of houses use them for bringing water for domestic use, certainly they ought not to be taxed. But if any person uses them for the purpose of selling water for domestic use, & make a profit out of it, I do not see why they should not be taxed like any other carts used for hire. The financial effect of the remission is not also stated. Further report should be called for.
